

EU Free Trade Agreements

Sarah Wollaston Chair, Health and Social Care Committee, Chair, Liaison Committee (Commons)

We now know that we will not have 40 of these deals ready to roll over on the stroke of midnight. Some of these deals will be worth proportionately more than others, so it could be said that we have a majority ready to go, but they might be ones of very low value. Can the Minister give us more clarity about the most valuable of these trade deals?

George Hollingbery Minister of State (International Trade)

I can report to the House that we are making good progress on a whole range of these deals, including those of high value and those at the other end of the scale.
